TWO WEARY INNINGS. Staley Gets a Little Astray With Bad

Results. Our mutual friend Michael Kelly has a very dangerous aggregation of baseball players here with him on this trip, but not so dangerous or olfish a lot as have visited this city previously. However, their first appearance bere this sea son, which was yesterday at Recreation Park, was signaled by a very singular victory. Michaet and his men won, and as far as that is con-cerned, that settles it; but there is nothing reasonable to show why the home talent shouldn't have won providing they had played anything like the way they can play. This is not said to detract anything from the victory of the cultured people, but it is remarked, by the way, to show that yesterday's victors, really good fellows and excellent ball players since Beaver was appointed Governor of the However, the visitors, taking matters all round, beat the home players fair and square; but the fact must be enforced that it was not but the fact must be enforced that it was not altogether by their first-class work as much as it was because of the shortcomings of the local representatives. Of course there are always a lot of "ifs and ands" connected with every defeat, but in some instances the "ifs" are reasonable. This was so yesterday, and the great majority of the 2,500 people present looked at matters in this light. Here's the primary reasonable if

THOSE BASES ON BALLS.

If Statey had not given so many bases on evergreen Clarkson was rapped a trifle harder than was Staley. Clarkson, however, did not make presents of bases as extravagantly as Staley, and that was really the deciding point of the game.

The aspiring champions were undoubtedly welcome here yesterday. Pittsburg is always glad to see such familiar faces as those owned by the famous Michael, Tom Brown, Brouthers and Clarkson. They are in good company this and Clarkson. They are in good company this time round and their good fielding yesterday probably made up for any disappointment that may have been caused by their not knocking the cover off a dozen of balls. Tom Brown was cheered, and hearthly cheered at that. Tom, Long Tom, that made the historical home run over the right field fence, has many friends here, but he aroused considerable temporary enimity here vesterday by making a hit the first time at bat and scoring. As a result of this ungenerous conduct when he showed one of his old failings at bat in the second inning by striking out he was cheered as loudly as ever. But the spirit of that promp ed the original cheer. This only shows that we are desirous of the downfall of anybody, friend or foe, who oppose downfall of anybody, friend or for, who oppose the select few who make up the Pittsourg ball

Well, the Bostons beat us by better all round nlaying. Without a doubt they are AN IMPROVED LOT on the team of last year, and it will take our home talent at their very best to score a victory from these Boston men, who evidently are determined to float the pennant down at their classical home next year. Judged from yesterday's game the Bostons are not liable to make many mistakes; their mission is to down every-body they meet; in a word, they are out for the The game was too onesided to be an interest-

The game was too onesided to be an interesting contest. In the very offset, by a series of unfortunate and coestly mistakes, by a series of took a decided lead: a lead of Six to one at the third inning. The game ended at that; but Clarkson was there in his oldtime form of canning and deception and he never allowed even the semblance of any extravagant onelaught such as has killed him here in days gone by. Charley Bennett looked well after him and the other seven colleagues were equal to nailing anything that came their way.

The game put up by the home nine was not the best that they can do. The mistakes made were costly and probably with the exception of Dunlap's errors in the first, inning were to a great extent inexcasable. Staley, indeed, did well to hold the heavy hitters down to seven hits, and had he not been at times a little wild.

hits, and had he not been at times a little wild, the result might have been different. The home team started out very encouragingly. Hanlon, after refusing one or two bad balls, whacked one out between the left and center fielders. He was at second base before the ball was returned, and when

CARBOLL THUMPED A HOT ONE toward Nash it seemed settled that Clark-son was still the old-time pie. Beckley came and everybody expected a home run, but Jake only sent a terrific bouncer to Big Dan, who picked it up with his big hands and, by the aid of Bennett, nabbed Hanlon at the plate. . That was painful. Still Clarkson was looked upon as a mark, and Maul's sacrifice hit brought as a mark, and Maul's sacrifice hit brought Carroll home, and in trying to get Carroll out at the plate the visitors allowed Maul to be safe. In the meantime, however, Beckley had been settled at second by Nash and Richardson, who handled the fall knocked out by Maul. Billy Sunday mildly ended all further chances that inning by knocking out a fly to Tom Brown. One run was scored, and that was the last for the home representatives.

Brown began for the visitors by thumping out a good hit to lett. He stole second, of course, and Johnstown went to first on balls. Kelly's sacrifice to Beckley brought Brown in, and Brouthers flew out to Maul and Johnston got to third. Richardson got his base on balls, and stole second. Nash also went to first on balls, and stole second. Nash also went to first on balls, and then Quinn knocked a safe hit to Dunlap, but in fielding it to Beckley he threw a little wild. As a result both Johnston and Richardson scored, making three runs for the pardson scored, making three runs for the Richardson then went out at first, but Nash made a scratch hit, and Brouthers scored. Nash stole second on a wild throw by Carroll, and ultimately got home on a muffed throw by Staley. The latter struck the next two mea out, and no more runs were made. Fesseeden unnured twee well. Follow.

THE TOUGHEST YET. Auson's Team Play Very Rocky and the Phillies Win. CHICAGO, June 19.-The Chicagos have played a good many tough games, but that of yesterday takes the bakery. They started in with a rush, on account of Buffinton's poor ottching, and had four runs before the Phillies had any. At this point the mascot lost his rab-bit's foot and their ragged work began. Two-hits, a wild pitch, two errors, and the visitors had the score tied. Curry's decisions were very rank, drawing hisses from the audience quite frequently. Score:

noon when at practice. Carroll of course will catch him. The Bostons' battery will be Madden and Ganzel: the balance of the teams will be as yesterday.

During yesterday's game Carroll was considerably discouraged because of some very unkind remarks that were made to him from the grand stand during the game. He made a somewhat pardonable wild throw and that seemed sufficient to prompt ungentlemanly remarks. As a result Carroll requested to be exempt from catching any more games, and added that he would catch every day when away.

No gentleman will defend such conduct as that complained of. The truth is Carroll caught an excellent game considering Staley's wildness. Such vulgar demonstrations as that of yesterday can only tend to make matters worse than they are, besides it lowers the dignity and gentlemanliness of those who indulge in such conduct. Depend upon it, that every player as a rule plays just as well as he knowshow, and mistakes are probably more painful to those who make them than to those who sit and look on.

The Fates Against Staley.

"I tell you," said Manager Phillips, last night, "that Staley is hoodcoed in the first and third innings. If you look back you'll see how he has invariably lost his games there. As usual he did so yesterday, and had he pitched in those innings as he did in the others the Bostons would not have gotten a run. Clarkson, I see, has gotten back to his old time rising ball, and so far this season nobody can measure it. He is pitching quite different from what he did last season." third innings. McKEESPORT, PA., June 19 .- The McKeesport Baseball Club met with the first defeat of the season on the home grounds this afternoon and the game was witnessed by 2,000 persons. The game was with the Louisville team and the score was 9 to 1 in favor of the professional team, but would have been less had some of the old players of the home team who were recently signed by other clubs been on hand. McKeesport did not play its usually strong game, but this, of course, is no apology, as the visitors are too slick at batting and base running for the home team. Bad throwing and poor base runhome team. Bad throwing and poor base running, besides errors, belped the score along.
Pete Browning, the famous batter of the visitors, made a home run and did the effective hitting, while Provins, of the home team, earned the one score with difficulty. Gilliland, the left-handed pitcher of McKeesport, was fairly slugged, but Ehret was not hit to any

IT WAS A SUICIDE.

The Body Found in the Allegheny Monday Was William Handlon's.

The unknown man found floating in the Allegheny river on Monday has been identi fied as William Handlon. An inquest was held yesterday and a verdict of suicide ren-dered. Handlon was about 45 years of age. He had been an engineer at Hussey, Howe & Co's mill for over 21 years. Last May he quit his position on account of a reduction. Since then he has been troubled with softening of the brain.

Some time ago be started to pay a visit to friends in Freeport. Instead, he went down Fifty-third street and jumped into the river. The body was identified Tuesday evening by his son, and owing to its being in an advanced state of decomposition was immediately buried in Allegheny Cemetery. At the inquest yesterday the facts given were ascertained and a verdict of suicide rendered. Handlon was a member of the American Protestant Association and a prominent Orangeman and member of the Knights of Pythias.

THE ONLY HORSE SAVED.

An Old Horseman Who Lost His Stable in the Flood.

Charles Zimmerman, one of the Jownstown survivors, was in the city last night. He is well up in sporting matters, especially horse busi-ness. Out of his large string of 28 horses, which were quartered in his stables at Johnstown, only one was saved, which he now has at Jackman's stable. His home, stables and everything were swent away save this one horse, which is a 4-year-old thoroughbred by Almont. In order to realize something like the value of the animal, it is offered to lovers of horse-flesh on Saturday.

hibition party's State Committee

There is a strained feeling in the Constitutional amendment camp because of charges made in the prohibition organ, The Quill, that prohibition tickets were tampered with at the prohibition headquarters. Many tickets marked "For the Amendment" were altered in pencil by the prefix of the word "Not," or by writing in "Against" instead of "For." The editor says he saw some of the tickets, and was told of them by people who had found some of them among those they got at the headquarters. Three of the young ladies who were employed as ticket folders by Chairman Geiger had been similarly employed by the Liquor Dealers' Association. Chairman Geiger denounced Editor Cougleton's story as a lie, but the charge was nevertheless verified by a young man employed at the headquarters. He did not think the doctoring was done by any of the tutional amendment camp because of think the doctoring was done by any of the young ladies, but he could not say who did it.

night, and said : "I can only reiterate what I have hereto fore said, that such a deleat of the prohibitory amendment, in the face of such a majority as the Republican party has in this State, cannot be otherwise than detrimental to the party. The result is no surprise to me, as the leaders and workers on both sides were all against the amendment. I was against the submission of the amend-ment at the time it was presented, because I did not understand for what purpose it was offered. My opinion at the time the resolu-tion was submitted to the convention was that it was done in good faith, but I am now convinced that such was not the case.

The amount spent by the liquor men in Philadelphia is estimated at not less than

The Pretty Trip Given by the Workmen or the Charleston. WASHINGTON, June 19.—The facts attending the pretty tribute offered by the men who built the cruiser Charleston, are explained in the following correspondence: SAN FRANCISCO, May 31, 1889. To the Secretary of the Navy, Washington, D.C.: Sir.—In response to our verbal request to be informed as to the particulars relating to the metal contained in the bell of the new cruiser Charles-contained in the bell of the new cruiser Charleston, I have to say that a few days before the casting of the bell the pattern maker at the works suggested that it would be a pity-to use ordinary metal, and suggested that each of the workmen contribute 10 cents in silver to carich the composition and give a superior ring to it. The entire force of over a tnovand responded to a man, the sum realized being nearly $150 almost all in 16-cent pleces, which was placed in the crueible and mixed with the other metal of the bell before casting. Yours respectfully. Yours respectfully. WM. W. MORROW. NAVY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, June 17, 1889.

WASHINGTON, June II, 1889. S
Representative William W. Morrow:

DEAR SIB—I have to thank your letter of the sist uitimo informing me of the particulars relating to the metal in the bell of the new cruiser Charleston. Among the many and qostly presents that have been lately made by towns and by individuals to the ships of the Navy there is none that the Department values and appreciates more than this spontaneous offering from the workmen of the Charleston. It was a peculiarly appropriate and graceful thought that led them to east a permanent memorial of their united labors. The vessel, named after one of the oldest historic cities of the Atlantic coast and built in the great metropolis of the Pacific, may be regarded as a type of the strength and unity of our republic; and the ring of true metal in this beil, due to the free contributions of 1,000 men who built the ship, will be a constant witness to the independence and patriotic spirit of our, best citizens, the workingmen of America. Very respectually,

Secretary of the Navy.

A Railway Corporation Strikes a Obstruction in Enforcing its Rules. The Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railway Com The Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railway Company has issued an order that market baskets must be put into the baggage car, or carriage paid for them. Yesterday the law went into effect, that is in a measure. A woman got aboard a few miles down the road and when the conductor insisted on carrying out the instructions of the company she defied him.

1 She would neither allow her basket to be put into the baggage car nor pay for it, and as she froze to it the order could not be enforced without violence. The trainmen gritted their teeth and wished she was a man, so that she could be smatched bald-headed, but it was of no use and she held the fort all the way to the city.
